National Repository

NTK launches the Czech National Repository for Scientific Publications

The National Library of Technology is launching the Czech National Repository for scientificpublications, which will help research organizations and other institutions comply with the new legal requirement for the open archiving of the research results. The Czech National Repository will offer secure storage and access to scientific documents and will support various access modes, including time-limited embargoes. It will build on the long-standing operation of the National Repository of Grey Literature (NUSL), whose data will be gradually transferred to the new system. More information on the Czech National Repository website.

GreyGuide D4Science Catalogue: A shared resource for grey literature

GreyGuide brings together information, good practices and research resources concerning the production, management, discovery and use of grey literature. The D4Science-based service is being developed as the successor to the existing GreyGuide Portal and Repository, preserving its knowledge base while making its catalogue available through a modern, sustainable environment.
